In 1994, shortly after moving from Athens, Georgia to Commerce, Texas, photographer, Rick Vanderpool began a series of trips that would total over 20,500 miles and 54 days to visit all 254 counties in Texas. While Vanderpool photographed anything else that caught his interest – from road kill and wildflowers, to grand views, stars and tumbleweeds – he was mostly looking for Texas; simply the word, in all its infinite variety of size, shape, color, style and material. His travels resulted in well over 1,000 images of the state name.

At present, 20 other photographers are covering the remaining states as Rick did Texas (he also covered AZ, OK, GA, FL, AL, WY, MT and UT). To view the national project, visit the www.stateart.net web site.
